

Acknowledgements (from the Lydia Cody book, The Cody Family Massachusetts 1698)

To those who have contributed so generously of their time, labor, and means, and of their inspiring interest toward obtaining and arranging the material which has gone into the making of this book, grateful acknowledgement is here extended:

To the late James L. Chapman, a sixth generation member of this family, for the considerable genealogical material which he contributed and for creating the interest which followed his work;

To the late Luther M. Cody and his brother Richard for their research at Beverly and Hopkinton, Mass., with its valuable results, and also for their continued interest in forwarding this book;

To Mrs. Lindus Cody and her daughter Lydia S. Cody for their contribution of time and means;

To Benjamin Cody of Newmarket, Ontario, Canada, for his inspiring interest and valuable contribution of material;

To Hiram S. Cody and his aunt Miss Philamina Cody for much service and material of great value;

To the late Eugene Cody Stacy, the late Francis A. Cody, and the late C. Paxton Cody for their help in means and interest;

To Ernest William Cody the devoted and long-time serving Secretary of the Cody Family Association, who has contributed generously toward forwarding the interest of this book, and to his wife Ellen Jean Cody who has helpfully assisted him in obtaining and compiling the genealogical material which has gone into its making;

To the genealogist of the Western Reserve Historical Society, Mrs. Emma B. Hawley, for her invaluable assistance.

Also let us add the many others whose continued interest has been of great value.
